EQUIPMENT BREAKDOWN & SERVICE LINE COVERAGE FOR YOUR HOME

As a homeowner, you need protection for the growing list of equipment within your home. In addition to the motors, pumps, compressors, and electronics that make up your home systems, the ever increasing amount of smart technology in homes creates significant risk because it's often expensive to repair or replace.

BENEFITS OF HOME SYSTEMS PROTECTION AND SERVICE LINE COVERAGE

Home systems protection is added to an existing home insurance policy to fill a coverage gap for homeowners. There are no inspection or maintenance records required and you can choose your own repair contractor. This coverage has no limit on square footage and claim payments include repair and service fees.

Should you require temporary shelter due to a qualifying event, home systems protection offers reimbursement for the cost, as well as payment for other unexpected costs, such as food spoilage from a refrigerator failure. It also covers environmental, safety and efficiency improvements.

WHY DO I NEED THIS COVERAGE?

Example of covered losses*:

In the middle of summer, the Jones' A/C unit stopped blowing cold air. The repair technician reported that due to a leak in the evaporator coil the unit overheated and caused the compressor to burn out. The damaged compressor was replaced.

Total amount covered: $1,915 less $500 policy deductible

During a winter storm, the Smith's furnace would not turn on. A repair technician found the primary circuit board had suffered an electronic impairment. A replacement circuit board was ordered overnight and installed.

Total amount covered: $4,000 less $500 policy deductible

The Browns' boiler malfunctioned while they were away from home. Pressure sheared off the bolts and caused the heat exchanger to burst. The boiler unit had to be replaced.

Total amount covered: $4,800 less $500 policy deductible
